"All the other vendors I looked at had confusing rates and hidden fees—but I couldn't be more pleased with ProPay. It's easy to understand. It's easy to process payments. I love that I can process payments online or by phone or send my clients an email link to do it themselves. I believe now that accepting credit card payments can add to your bottom line cause I've seen it happen."

How Distributors Benefit from ProPay Distributor Merchant Accounts

Studies have shown that the average credit card order is two to four times larger than the average cash or check order. Consumers purchase more when paying by credit card. Distributors who make credit cards their preferred method of payment can reduce or eliminate bounced checks and decrease the time it takes to process orders. While some distributors may be hesitant to accept credit cards because of the processing fees, they actually make more money than they pay in fees because order sizes are larger. Plus, ProPay has none of the monthly, gateway or equipment fees of traditional merchant accounts. Distributors only need a computer or telephone to process cards.

With ProPay Distributor Merchant Accounts, distributors benefit by being able to:

- Grow their business by catering to customers who are inclined to use credit cards.
- Increase their average order size.
- Gain more control over their transactions.
- Sign up quickly and start taking credit card orders in five minutes or less from a trusted, source vs. weeks for a traditional merchant account.

"[Accepting credit cards] validates and legitimizes me as a business person. It shows that I'm not just working a hobby on the side—that I actually own a business."
